

3

Benefits of Wood Flooring for Bathrooms

1 - Versatile

Wood flooring doesn't attract animal hair like carpeting does. It also doesn't break or feel as cold as tile does.

When it comes to designing bathrooms, most designers opt for white tile and neutral colors because they are timeless and appeal to a larger variety of home buyers.

However, utilizing wood instead can help make a bathroom feel warmer while still giving off the same clean and peaceful feeling.

2 - Variety of Looks

Thanks to powerful ventilation systems in homes as well as improved construction techniques, wood is now on the rise as a bathroom flooring option. Homeowners can choose from a variety of wood floorings including solid hardwood or engineered hardwood in a variety of colors.

While there isn't much of a difference aesthetically between solid hardwood and engineered hardwood, solid is more expensive than engineered. Additionally, engineered hardwood handles moisture better than solid hardwood.

3 - Comforting

Wood flooring opens up a new world of design options for people who want to give their bathrooms a more homey feel, while still keeping it classy.

As you look at ideas for future bathroom remodeling ventures, be sure to put wood on your list of flooring candidates.

Presented by:
www.WashingtonStateKitchenBath.com

images: pixabay.com

WASHINGTON
STATE
KITCHEN & BATH